September 4, 2022 ~ Twenty-third Sunday in Ordinary Time

“In the help we give our neighbor, God’s will be done!”

On this holiday weekend – the unofficial end to summer and the beginning of fall – we hear a gospel reading that can leave us feeling uneasy at best. Jesus continues to lay out the reality of what it means to follow him. When a disciple makes the decision to give up the pursuits of this world to center life and love on Christ, that can be very scary, especially for family members who have expectations and assumptions based on their own experiences. Jesus uses the metaphors of an architect making calculations and a king planning for battle. In each of these situations, Jesus makes the point that massive projects take intentional foresight. If we are to align our lives with the work of Christ, we have to take stock of what it will affect in our life and, to that end, who might be hurt by our decisions. Just because someone chooses to follow the gospel doesn’t mean that everyone will understand it. In that same vein, we have to be aware of how following Christ will alter our own desires and comfort. Jesus doesn’t want us to bite off more than we can chew or expect too much of ourselves without proper preparation. Imagine how strange it must have felt for Jesus’s disciples to hear him say, “whoever does not carry his own cross and come after me cannot be my disciple.” As disciples, we must realize that the crosses of our life are not something to be avoided but rather embraced. The cross is an image of complete self-gift. Jesus gave himself totally for us through his death on the cross. We, too, have been called to share the gift of ourselves, even when we might not literally be called to die for our faith. We practice self-gift when we give our time to others, listening attentively, and making decisions that benefit the good of others instead of ourselves. We practice self-gift when we recognize that we do not exist as isolated individuals and all of God’s creation does not revolve around us. Indeed, let us follow Jesus’s command to carry our cross after him that we might know the joy that comes in living for others.

As we mark Labor Day and the beginning of September we are slowly returning to activity and events here at the parish from the summer hiatus. I hope that you will take advantage of the many opportunities to be involved in our parish by considering joining any group or organization. Meetings are always open to anyone who wants to join in or attend and every group needs new members! In addition to our worship each week, this is how we live out our call to discipleship and mission. Many thanks to all for your continued commitment, dedication, and service to the message of the Gospel and the mission of the Church lived out by the many activities and projects of our parish groups and organization!

Make it a great week! ~ Fr. Balash

WEEKLY BIBLE REFLECTIONS

Twenty-Third Sunday in Ordinary Time

"Everyone of you who does not renounce all his possessions cannot be my disciple." Luke 14:33

When we first hear this statement, it seems that Jesus is making an unrealistic demand upon us. How can we renounce all of our possessions? We need them to live. However, what we must renounce is the belief that they belong to us. Everything that we have belongs to God alone. All of our resources are entrusted to us not only for our own use, but also so that we can help others. Once we renounce the idea that we possess or are entitled to anything, it is much easier to share the many gifts that God has given us. Then we truly are His Disciples.
